Pilot project: City-Mohali road one-way for few hours

Deepak.Yadav@timesgroup.com

Chandigarh: Only one-way vehicle movement will be allowed on a road connecting Chandigarh with Mohali during rush hour in the morning and evening to ease congestion in a pilot project likely to start soon.

The matter was discussed in a high-level meeting of senior officers of the UT administration on Friday. It was suggested that since traffic of the neighbouring cities increases manifold during morning and evening hours—thousands of people commute to offices in the city from Mohali and Panchkula—one-way traffic system is the need of an hour. The officers said the move should be tested for the larger benefit of commuters.

The traffic police have been told to prepare a detailed plan to introduce the system. If all goes well, the exercise will start this month.

Sources in the UT said Udyan Path, the road which starts from Mohali and ends at Punjab and Haryana secretariat in Sector 1, is being considered for the project. There are four lanes on the road—two for going in one direction and the rest for the other. According to the initial plan, all four lanes will be kept only for one-way traffic for a few hours in the morning and evening, when people go and return from their offices.

If the results are positive, the system will be followed on more roads, mainly from Panchkula and Mohali. A senior officer said, "The project was discussed in detail. Many cities have adopted this system to ease traffic and the results have been positive. Since every city has its own traffic management, we should at least explore this system as per Tricity's traffic scenario by keeping all related aspects in mind," said a senior officer.

WORKING ON PLAN: SSP

Shashank Anand, SSP (traffic and security), who has been preparing a detailed plan, said, "We have been working on the plan in a holistic way. Since there are various aspects, each one is being studied by keeping every kind of traffic flow in mind."

SAFE PASSAGE

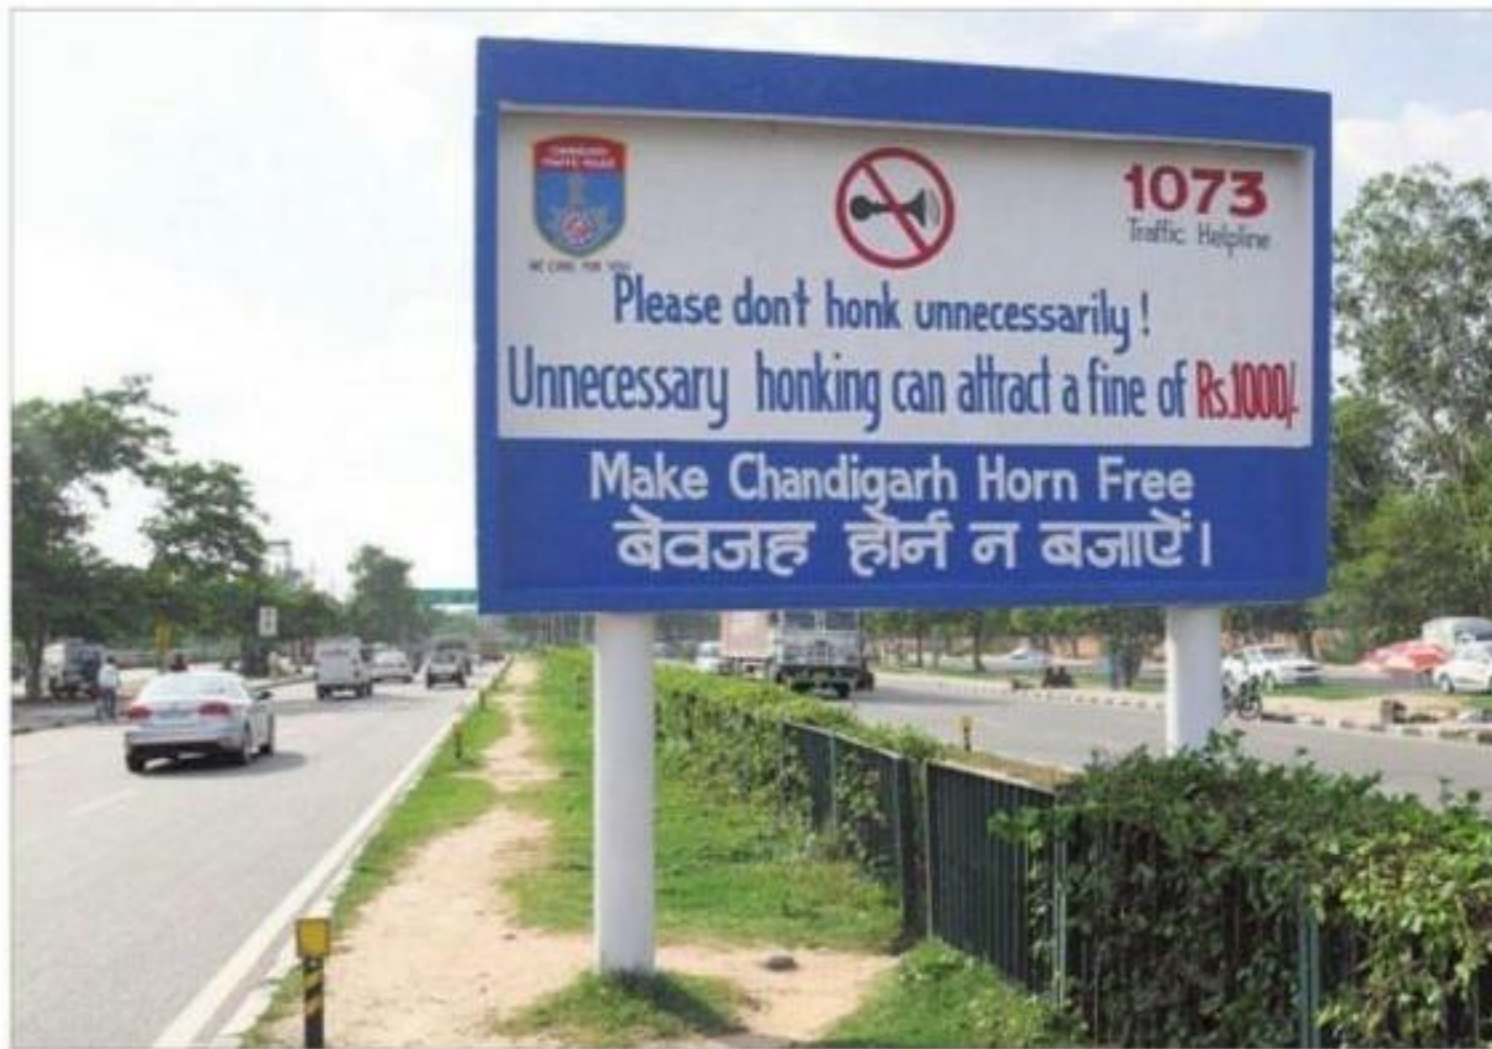

Sources in the administration said safe passage for ambulances, fire brigade vehicles, pedestrians and cyclists is the main aspect for the authorities. While introducing one-way traffic, the authorities will have to ensure safe passage for all such commuters. Cops would also be tested in managing traffic and ensuring safe movement near the rotaries

Ban pressure horns, limit noise level of others

NITIN JAIN

"If someone honks the moment a traffic light turns green, it's a dangerous clinical symptom of hypertension and anxiety syndrome. His co-passengers should inform his family to arrange medical attention for him".

This post made by a chief secretary-rank bureaucrat on his social media handle describes the extent of unnecessary honking in the tricity region comprising Chandigarh, Mohali and Panchkula.

We all have been witness to unnecessary honking when we commute on the tricity roads on a daily basis but not much has been done to check this menace. Realising the problem and the pain it causes, the Chandigarh Traffic Police had recently taken to

QUESTION

Finally, the UT Administration has made the helmet compulsory for all women driving or riding pillion two-wheelers in the city. However, only Sikh women wearing a turban are exempted. Should those driving or riding pillion without the helmet even now be challaned or should they be further sensitised to wear the headgear? Suggestions in not more than 70 words can be sent to openhouse@tribunemail.com the roads to sensitise drivers not to honk until or unless it's necessary and preach, "Say, no to honking".

Seeing little effect of the sensitisation drive, which involved SSP-rank officers standing by the roadside and speaking to the drivers, the UT Traffic Police have now finally put up warning boards at the city's entry and exit points, proclaiming that unnecessary honking can attract a fine of up to Rs 1,000.

Imposing penalty and heavy fine for any offence no doubt proves deterrent, but when it comes to honking, it more relates to one's civic sense. It is perhaps in this spirit that the UT Traffic Police have gone on record saying they would not take to challaning for honking this year. Warning boards have been put up to make the drivers conscious that unnecessary honking can cost them dear. But detecting such drivers as honk unnecessarily would not be an easy job in the absence of hi-tech equipment required for this purpose.

Banning pressure horns completely, not only their use but also sale and manufacturing, bringing down the noise level of horns at the manufacturing level, earmarking more 'silence zones' where honking is banned, further sensitisation of drivers, and yet, if unnecessary honking continues, not only fine but also suspension of driving licence could be explored to check the menace in right earnest.

Public would do well to come forward to help the police in making Chandigarh the first honking-free city in the country. It would make us all feel proud and add another feather to the cap of the City Beautiful.
